The 2022-2023 President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship

Competition is OPEN and applications are being accepted.

Application deadline: April 15, 2022

Purpose and Eligibility for the President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship

The President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship was established in 2014 to provide one year of support to advanced doctoral students who are completing Ph.D. dissertations. These are one time fellowships meant to offset a scholar's living expenses while completing the dissertation. This competition is specifically aimed at graduate students who are underrepresented minorities (URMs) in their field. The URM designation applies to racial, ethnic, gender and disability classification. Graduate students in the natural, physical and life sciences, engineering, technology, and mathematics, are especially encouraged to apply. In order to apply for this award, IU program applicants must have been admitted to candidacy and receive Graduate School recorder approval at least one month prior to the application deadline. Purdue program applicants must have been admitted to candidacy and have a submitted and approved Purdue Form 10, Report of the Preliminary Examination.

Dissertation fellowships will be awarded in a university-wide competition administered by core campus committees to individuals who have demonstrated academic achievement and show promise of future achievement as scholars, teachers, researchers or professionals. Preference will be given to applicants who demonstrate a strong likelihood of filing the thesis at the end of the fellowship period. President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship recipients will receive a full stipend and health insurance for one year as they work toward completing the PhD degree.

Stipend and Benefits:

1. One-year stipend: $22,500 (non-STE/IM) - $25,000 (STE/IM) disciplines.
2. Student health insurance for fellowship recipients
3. Opportunity to participate in workshops from the Graduate Mentorship Center and the IUPUI Preparing Future Faculty and Professionals program. Possibility for expenses to be paid to attend the Teaching and Mentoring Conference by the Southern Regional Board's Compact for Faculty Development; and, the possibility for expenses to participate in one of the semester-long activities sponsored by the National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity.

The University Graduate School can support a total of 12 students across the two core campuses (IU and IUPUI) each academic year.

Eligibility for the President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship is limited to:

1. Doctoral candidates in Ph.D. programs at Indiana University Bloomington and Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis.
2. Citizens, nationals, and permanent residents (holders of a Permanent Resident Card) of the U.S.A.
3. Individuals belonging to one or more of the following classes:
 - a. Must be an underrepresented minority, URM, in their particular discipline. The term URM includes DOMESTIC African Americans, American Indians, Alaska Natives, Asian Americans, Hispanic Americans, or Pacific Islanders/Native Hawaiians.
 - b. Person with disabilities. Under ADA, an individual is considered to have a disability if he or she has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of his or her major life activities and has a record of such impairment.
 - c. A gender minority (< 30% of the current graduate population in the department).
 - d. A first generation college student (a student whose legal custodian(s) did not complete a four- year college degree).
4. Individuals who have not received a dissertation fellowship.

Selection criteria will include the following:

1. Degree of promise of completing the Ph.D. dissertation
2. Type and amount of funding received prior to the application of the President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship

Nomination process:

Students must be nominated by their department/school. In nominating the student, the department must submit a completed application verifying that the student has completed all requirements for their Ph.D. except for submission of the dissertation in their graduate program and has been admitted to candidacy. Purdue students must have a submitted and approved Purdue Form 10. In nominating the student, the department also agrees to ensure that recipients do not accept other graduate awards or employment during the period of funding (fall and spring semesters), and will submit a final report on behalf of the student.

The University Graduate School will award twelve fellowships in 2022-23 across the two core campuses (IUB and IUPUI).

Is a student eligible if they are a doctoral candidate in a degree other than the Ph.D.?

Yes, nominations are also open to Ph.D. candidates earning a dual degree (e.g. M.D./Ph.D., J.D./Ph.D., etc.) who are underrepresented (< 30%) or minority students in their IU or Purdue degree program. Please see the 2022-2021 President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship Guidelines and the application introduction for more information on the criteria used in determining eligibility.

What is the nomination deadline?

The application deadline is April 15, 2022 (5 p.m. Eastern Time) and must be submitted to the respective University Graduate School office on the applicant's campus through the following link <http://go.iu.edu/250q>

How would you like me to submit my official graduate transcript?

Scanned copies of the student's unofficial IU transcript are allowable.

Will additional documents, such as letters of recommendation or appendices be accepted?

Please limit application to the documents that comprise the application. We will not be able to accept additional documents.

How will I be notified?

Recipients of the President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship will be notified directly by the University Graduate School via email. Those who are not awarded Fellowships will receive an email from the University Graduate School.

I am not eligible this year due to the timing of my proposal defense. Could I be nominated next year?

Yes. The University Graduate School will continue to offer the President's Diversity Dissertation Fellowship. We also plan to maintain an annual schedule of announcing in the fall with applications due in April.

Will the University Graduate School give feedback if my nomination is not chosen?

No. The University Graduate School will not comment on nominations after making award decisions. All applications and supporting materials become the property of the University Graduate School and, as such, will not be returned.
